

The clinical significance of measuring the distensibility of the carotid artery