

Abstract:

This bachelor thesis is focused on definition of the new information professionals term and introducing organizations which are focused on this group of information professionals. Part of this bachelor thesis describes keys activities of these professional organizations in foreign countries and starting activities in the Czech Republic. The practical part consists of a qualitative research which was accomplished between the students of Information and Library Science in Faculty of Arts, Charles University as a potential new information professionals. This research involved their attitudes and visions about work in the field of Information and Library Science and also their knowledge about groups of new information professionals.