

Abstract

The aim of the thesis is to describe the changes in the ways in which the Czech historiography of the 20th century reflected the subject of social conflicts, especially the concept of revolution. Therefore, consideration is given to used terms, argumentation and explanatory strategies, ideologies or interpretation of sources. The consideration is also given to common and distinct features, possibilities of development or continuity.