

Abstract

The topic of the diploma thesis is the punishment of the disqualification and its control. The main goal is to analyze the legislation of the punishment in Czech criminal law and its difficulties, describe control of the execution of the punishment and suggest possibilities of improvement of the regulation in this field.

The diploma thesis is composed of eleven chapters and firstly focuses on the issue of the punishment of the disqualification and its purpose in general. Third chapter deals with historical development of the punishment, subsequently its legislation in Czech criminal law, including the legislation of the conditions of imposition of the punishment, especially condition of the connection between the crime and banned activity, and the measurement of the punishment.

The fifth chapter summarizes decision-making practice of the Czech court since the criminal code no. 40/2009 Sb. came into force, and it is explained especially through statistics. Particular attention is paid to the punishment of the disqualification which lies in the prohibition of driving of motor vehicles, and to the institutes similar to the punishment of the disqualification in Czech criminal law, especially focused on adequate restrictions and adequate obligations with an emphasis on adequate restriction prohibiting driving of the motor vehicles.

The sixth and seventh chapters analyze the punishment of the disqualification imposed to the youth offenders and legal entities.

The diploma thesis in its eight chapter explains the execution of the punishment of disqualification, conditional release from the rest of the sentence, consequences of breach of the execution perceived as committing a crime of obstructing the official decision and banishment. The ninth chapter points out the control of the execution of the prohibition.

Last chapters compare the punishment of disqualification in criminal and administrative law, and then briefly explain the adjustment of the punishment in Kingdom of Spain.

The diploma thesis begins with introduction where I explain main goals of my work and at the end of the thesis I summarize and comment achieved results.