

Abstract in English

A shipment of waste in European Union is really important part of the waste economy. A need of its control raised with the free movement of goods in the EU, because the unlimited shipment of waste would lead to irreplaceable damage on the environment. Regulation No. 1013/2006, which is the most important document in this area, had to be properly adapted, that it could be its application secured. The main topic of my thesis is just not only the analysis of the Regulation No. 1013/2006, but also the comparison of its adaptation in the Czech Republic and Germany.