

Abstract

The diploma thesis titled Assisted contact parents with children in the Czech Republic focuses on the current description of the service, which aims to promote relations in the divorcing family and the common safe and nonconflict contact between parents and child. The aim of the diploma thesis is to describe the current form of assisted contact parents with children in Czech organizations. The work is mentioned in the foreign organization, from which this practice has spread to the Czech Republic. The thesis is divided into a theoretical and practical part, which maps the assisted contact of parents with children. The theoretical part deals with the impact of family breakdown on the family, the description of assisted parenting with children. Part is dedicated to foreign organizations providing assisted parenting with children. The last chapter is then mapped by Czech organizations. The practical part shows the results of structured interviews with organizations. The interview was divided into four areas. During the research, it was found that the current state of assisted parenting with children is used by parents rather after the recommendation of the body for social and legal protection of children or the court. A big issue is funding, which is very complicated due to the non-abusive assimilation of law in the law. Organizations do not have a full interest in the fact that the assisted contact is registered in Act No. 108/2006 Coll. On social services.
