

The theses is focused on cooperative education in connection with the current transformation process of the Czech educational system.

I describe the relations which influence the atmosphere of the classroom. I also concentrate on the main features of cooperative education, possibilities and pitfalls of introducing cooperation in to the educational process.

Practical part is created by active research which describes and analyses steps and subjects of introducing cooperative education in art, musical and physical training lessons at the primary school.