

Abstract

This diploma thesis explores Media Education in Teaching Geography. The theoretical part of my thesis contains an explanation of key words and introduces the main concepts of media education. The next part sketches the development and the main problems of media education in foreign countries with a long holding tradition in this field, and discusses the conditions for introducing media education in this country. This thesis concentrates on connections between media education and geography: One part is formed by the results of a survey among teachers of geography. The survey is focused on the teachers' attitudes towards media education in general and also with geography. The main focus is in certain activities in which media education can be used in the teaching of geography. The CD-rom with the necessary materials for these activities is included.
