

ABSTRACT

The bachelor thesis deals with the issue of setting up school councils in elementary schools. Respondents of the empirical research were founders' deputies of complete primary schools in Hradec Kralove Region and chairpeople of their school council. In particular, the results of the survey can be used to find possibilities for cooperation between the principal and the school council, so that its activities can help to the overall development of the educational process in the given school. As a basis for reflection, it can serve all stakeholders, i.e. school management, pedagogical staff, founders, and last but not least parents.

The aim of this thesis is to find out which with the law given competencies of school councils the founders consider to be the most important and the most useful during keeping and managing their schools. The partial aim wants to verify if the founders' opinion is the same with chairpeople's opinion in the school council.
