

Abstract

Based on the theology of the Holy Spirit and his role in the process of Christian initiation in particular, this bachelor thesis attempts to draft a mystagogical catechesis of the impact of the Holy Spirit in chosen sacraments. First, this thesis deals with the impact of the Holy Spirit in the history of salvation and specifically on the term spirit in the Sacred Scripture. Then the thesis will deal with the impact of the Holy Spirit in the process of the Christian initiation. The last part includes a draft of a mystagogical catechesis concerning the impact of the Holy Spirit in the sacrament of baptism, confirmation, Eucharist and the sacrament of confession which should help neophytes to deepen their lives from sacraments.
