

The aim of this thesis is to consider all the possibilities of job opportunities for people with severe hearing impairment. Handicapped people have in general difficult conditions to find a job. People with severe hearing impairment have these conditions even more difficult not only because of their different way of communication, but also because of a different way of approaching them, their accession to education and their personal characteristics typical for deaf people.