

This thesis is about problematic of inpatients in long - term medical care institution. Theoretical part of this work focuses on environment and structure of this institution and composition of patients in these specialized institutions. There is speaking about specific of somatic and psychical problems of these patients. Practical part of this work introduces us anamnesis of some inpatients. There is focus on about kinds of correction methods and types of therapies for this patients and it include methods of testing, which are finding out the level of chosen abilities of every patient.