

Summary

The main objective of this thesis is pastoral care in ICF Prague. The aim of this work is to provide reader enough information about pastoral work in general and also within the ICF church. It also introduces specific tools that ICF offers to its attenders.

This work is also focusing on believers, it deals with the question if attending Christians have a person that they can turn to with their life problems and when in need.

The work is divided into several parts and the first chapter firstly clarifies the meaning of the term “pastoral care” and secondly it talks about the pastoral care in the Gospel and the Bible itself, which is important for evangelical environment where ICF Prague is classified.

The second and third chapter covers a brief overview of history of ICF Prague, its vision, style and also the specific projects and tools that ICF uses in order to provide pastoral care to people.

The last part of this thesis focuses on the research. The summarization and evaluation of the research that took place in ICF Prague is written in the last chapter.
