The thesis deals with individual experience of teachers of secondary schools in the area of communication with parents. The first part summarizes the theoretical knowledge necessary for understanding the next part of the thesis. The second part is devoted to the actual research and its results. The aim of the thesis is to introduce the reader to the current form of the teacher–parent relationship from the point of view of selected teachers through their individual experience. This is achieved through mixed methods research – surveys and semi-structured interviews with selected respondents. The results of this thesis allow the reader to be knowledgeable in the current form of functioning of the teacher–parent relationship at the secondary level of elementary schools in the Czech Republic.

Keywords: teacher experience, parents, factors in education, education process, elementary school.
