

Abstract

This bachelor's thesis consists of the translation of five selected articles and the commentary of the translation. Two articles are about high blood pressure, two about diabetes and one is about cholesterol. The commentary is constituted by the analysis of the source text, based on Christiane Nord's model, as well as the description of the translation method, solutions of selected translation problems and the typology of translation shifts.