

Abstract

The aim of this bachelor's thesis is to translate the article "Marcus Tullius Cicero, Who Gave Natural Law to the Modern World" by Jim Powell from English into Czech and to carry out an analysis of both the source text and the translation in the second, theoretical part. The theoretical part also focuses on the description of the translation method and the typology of translation shifts and problems.