

ABSTRACT

Bachelor Thesis focuses on the issue of domestic violence and its impact on a child. The work contains theoretical and practical part. The first chapter in a theoretical part in general, domestic violence, its causes, consequences, and the identification of the problem. In the next chapter, the victim is characterised by a violent person and all persons who may become victims of domestic violence. The attention of tormented, abused and neglected child. It is definition, speeches, forms, causes and consequences. The last chapter of the theoretical part of the assistance to persons at risk of domestic violence prevention, intervention centres and legal framework of domestic violence in the Czech Republic. The practical part is realized as quantitative research. The research is based on the method of questionnaire which was sent to the general public in electronic form. The main purpose of this thesis and also this questionnaire is to find out how the company is informed about domestic violence and its impact on a child. Based on the information obtained from the questionnaire, the major society is aware of domestic violence but the problem is usually where to seek help. More than a half of the respondents believes that domestic violence has a negative impact on the psychic side and also the child's socialization, considering the possible tendency to aggression.

KEY WORDS: domestic violence, syndrome Child Abused and Neglect, victim of domestic violence, abusive partner, woman, man, child