Title of Diploma Thesis: Problem of Craving in the Treatment of Addictive Disorders

Presented Diploma Thesis summarises the basic information about the craving and its role in the Syndrome of Dependency trough mechanisms which can apply at the origin of dependency. The thesis is focused mostly managing of craving in dependent people to alcohol, nicotine, coca in and in the gamblers in which are applied similar as in the development of dependency to drugs. We tried to introduce medicines which are used at present for their possible antic raving effect and those drugs where their effect is intensively studied. These medicines can therefore be used in the future as the promising tool in the treatment of these disorders.
