

ABSTRACT

This bachelor work is concerned with motivation factors which have an influence on attractiveness of apprenticeship and in general a manual works and connect it with social, biological and economic factors. It place emphasis on the root of the trouble included social one, that resulted to an attractiveness decrease. It present overview of didactic methods with emphasis on their common characteristics and stability also. Another part of this work present a specific example of teaching result's dependency on teaching method's choice.