Course of defence: Max presented key results of his thesis. He was able to address the points raised by both the advisor and the opponent reasonably. He was able to reply to the committee's questions on consumer's patterns, econometric models and correlation analysis. However, Max didn't check multicollinearity in the thesis (what was highlighted by the opponent) but he mentioned the Variance Inflation Factor test during the defense. His presentation performance was relatively good compared to other students.
