

ABSTRACT

The submitted thesis deals with legal questions which are arising in connection with the use of promissory notes in consumer relations, and is especially focused on conflict between rigor cambialis and consumer protection policy.

The thesis is especially working with today's judicature, analyzing and comparing it with doctrine, former judicature, and principles of fairness.