Abstract:

The diploma thesis called Analysis of the legal regulation of the extradition of monetary compensation from the budget of The State land agency office is to investigate the issue of monetary restitution compensation of beneficiaries under the Land Act and to find out the real impact of the amount of already issued monetary compensation and the impact of the amount of restitution claims so far established on the budget of the State Land Office as an organizational unit of state. The State Land Office is currently deals with the settlement of restitution claims of beneficiaries under the Land Act.

Restitution claims under the Land Act are settled in several ways. In this diploma thesis I work mainly with the form of monetary compensation. The main methods used in diploma thesis are the analysis of the whole issue and the synthesis of individual phenomena.

In order to carry out the whole analysis, the thesis focused on the development of the amount of monetary compensation for the entire period of effect of the Land Act, i.e. for the years since 1991 up to this day.

The restitution compensation process has already been under the agenda of three different institutions (The Land Fund of the Czech Republic, The State Land Office, Ministry of Agriculture) with one institution covering the other two. The analysis deals with restitution compensation issued by The State Land Office which is currently the responsible office for the mentioned agenda, inter alia, the settlement of restitution compensation, and The Land Fund of the Czech Republic, which was the forerunner of The State Land Office. Ministry of Agriculture, as a state body, founder of The Land Fund of the Czech Republic and a supervisor of The State Land Office, was also dealing with monetary compensations.

The analysis further focuses on the methods of valuation of restitution claims based on the prices declared by The Land Act. It represents the development of prices according to local valuation regulations and compares them with the current market prices.

The purpose of the whole analysis is a forecast the future development of the settlement of restitution claims, a summary of the Constitution Court's requirements for a restitution dot and an outline of a possible viable solution, respectively accelerating the completion of the settlement of restitution claims.
