

Abstract

This bachelor thesis consists of two main parts. The first part presents an annotated translation of twenty chapters from the book Conseils anti-migraine written by the French author Marie Borrel. The second part presents the theoretical commentary, which includes translation analysis of the original and deals with the method of translation and translation problems.