MICHÁLKOVÁ, Petra. Neoclassical Architecture in Bohemia – Examples of Kačina at Kutná Hora and Nový zámek in Kostelec nad Orlicí. A comparison of buildings and builders. Prague, 2020. Bachelor's thesis. Charles University. Faculty of Education.

My thesis deals with the topic of classicism in Bohemia using two using two particular examples of castles. In the first chapter, in the context of historical events, I place the concept of classicism, which I try to distinguish from the concept of the empire style and neoclassicism. I also deal with different developments in individual countries and how they influenced architecture in Bohemia. In the following part, I focus on specific buildings in Kačina near Kutná Hora and the New Castle in Kostelec nad Orlicí, where I will firstly describe the aristocratic families that owned the buildings. The analyse of the ideas that led to the building of the mansion follows, and then I move on to the architecture of the buildings. In the conclusions of these chapters I state what fate the building met and what their present state looks like. The last chapter is a comparison of buildings and builders. The architects are not left out in this thesis either. Firstly, I distinguished the criteria according to which buildings are assessed and then I compared the buildings step by step according to the mentioned criteria.
