

The dissertation thesis The Use of ICT in the Institutional Care System is focused on institutional care, its definition and terminology as well as the description of specific institutional care system components in the Czech Republic and their legal framework. The dissertation also studies the use of established information and communication technologies (ICT) in the institutional care system and includes an analysis of both the internal information system in Diagnostický ústav pro mládež, Praha 2, Lublaňská 33 and the web based information portal "Institutional Care Aspects" for purposes of the institutional care system