

The diploma thesis The Value Orientation of Young Women evaluates relationship differences between men and women; it defines and classifies moral values and detects changes in value orientations of contemporary postmodern society.

The thesis describes value orientations of young women on the basis of comparison of the results from qualitative research made in the way of half-standardized interviews with ten Czech women in the age of 25 to 30 years, and the earlier research that was done mostly in 1990s.

On the basis of the research, the thesis reveals some areas where the value orientation stays unchanged, but on the other hand it also finds out areas where some differences are detectable and where a movement in time can be noticed.
