

The thesis „Architectonic Space“ deals with the problem of space in architecture. Describing the distinction of polarity of inside and outside, its task is to define the ontological status of the architectural space. Furthermore the discourse of space within architecture is introduced. The study also deals with both the relation of space and architecture (architectural specializing) and the relation of human spatiality and architectonic space.