

ABSTRACT

This bachelor's thesis is a translation of a sociolinguistic study focused on a Para-Romani language Caló and its knowledge among Romani speakers in Andalusia. The annotation focuses on translation analysis of the source text, making use of Czech and Spanish stylistics findings. Furthermore, used translation processes are described on both lexical and syntactic levels.