

This diploma work focuses on the role of NGOs in the process of integration of asylees in the Czech Republic. The main goal is to map NGOs engaged in the topic and to determine their role in this process. Theoretical part defines individual segments, which are part of the survey, briefly describes asylum problems and policy, introduces definition of integration and main integration concepts, describes the course and potential attainments. In the empirical part there are described basic information of individual NGOs, analyse of performed interviews with representatives of NGOs, state institutions and asylees and general summary. The discovered findings from the research and evaluated achieved aims are placed at the end of the work.