

Review of the Doctor Yang doctoral studies

Mr. Shiann-Guey Yang, MD, has completed bachelor degree at School of Pharmacy, Taipei Medical University in Taiwan, in 1988. By the Doctor of Medicine degree he was rewarded after completing his master study at Fatima College of Medicine in Philippines in 1994. In 2008 he has started his study in the doctoral program in Biomedicine at Charles University in Prague in specialization Human Physiology and Pathophysiology.

During his doctoral study he has passed all required courses during the first three years and simultaneously he has prepared a plan of his experimental work. As he has been originally specialized in Gynecology and Obstetrics and since 2009 also in Anti-Aging Medicine, he has chosen a very interesting topic of his research dealing with pathophysiology of aging of women particularly with the question of cardiologic diseases of women in higher age categories. This topic is very interesting as it corresponds to the modern concept of personalized medicine. This is proved also by citation of his papers (14 citations without self-citations).

In his work he was very active and he realized all his experimental work unaided with only few consultations dealing particularly with an interpretation of the results of his research. I want to appreciate particularly his hardworking approach to the experimental work as well as to the study of literature.
