

The aim of thesis "The antimissile base in the Czech Republic" is to introduce the decision making process concerning a radar base, which would be located in Brdy, Czech Republic. Interpretation of this process was based on media monitoring and collected data from public opinion surveys through theoretical concept of risk society by Ulrich Beck.

The whole discussion about the military base is emotional and therefore confusing. The base should serve as a protection from the risk of a rocket aggression, nevertheless, on the other hand it is viewed as a source for another threats eg. public are defining base like possible target from unknown potential enemy i.a. like source of harmful X-ray too etc. Because this manufactured risks are product of human activity, there is a huge potential to assess the level of risk that is being produced, or that is about to be produced. As it is the destiny of the Risk society to multiply threats. Under these circumstances the merit of the discussion has blurred definitely.
