

This thesis seeks to analyse course and causes of unemployment in transition in Prague area. Subsequently it will be explicit characteristic of the area, concept of transition and its impact on unemployment, legislative changes. On these basis we will try to answer a question, if it is a problem with Prague structure of unemployment, shortage of vacancies, or unwillingness of unemployed people to work.