

Abstract

Title: Analysis of preparation and content of summer camps with the possibility to apply game series

Objective: In the thesis we address the analysis of preparation and content of summer camps with the application of game series. We make comparison on the reflexions of children from the summer camps with the game series and sport workshop.

Methods: We have verified in practise several game series in childrens' summer camps. We have used questionnaire and oral evaluation in order to obtain the feedback.

Results: The results of the research indicate that summer camps are appreciated by the children, they help making new contacts and developing communication among children and obtaining new knowledge and increasing independence.

We conclude from the results that the priority precondition for success of the summer camps is enthusiasmus, endeavour and effort of the instructors to create the right atmosphere that is able to fascinate the children and to drag them into the camp events. The instructors bear the responsibility for the positive effect, final experience of children, course and the overall result of the camp.

Key words:

summer camp, preparation, game, motivation, game series