

Abstract

This bachelor's thesis takes place at the Battle of Austerlitz on December 6, 1805, also known as the Battle of the Three Emperors or Austerlitz, which occurred in our territory. Moreover, this battle was one of Napoleon's most important victories that resulted in the Holy Roman Empire falling apart. This paper aims to design and create a historical atlas of this battle. Theoretically, the writer will provide the evidence with available analysis of cartographic products connected to the battle. Additionally, this paper focuses on introducing the Napoleonic Wars and their participants, and the course of the Battle of Austerlitz.

Based on the analysis, a custom design of a thematic historical atlas, including a character key, is will be created. The practical output will be the thematic historical atlas of the Battle of Austerlitz, including both topographic maps and accompanying texts, pictures, or tables. Overall, critically evaluate the paper with a discussion.

Key words: historical atlas, battle of Austerlitz, digital map collection, battle map, old map, ArcGIS