

The thesis is focused on the language aspect of integration of immigrant children from other-speaking countries into primary schools in the Czech Republic. It represents the treatment in theory and also the solution in routine. It describes similar systems of integration of other countries in Europe with would be suitable to inspire from.