My dissertation work is focused on a correlation between drama education as a possible fear prevention for preschool aged children applying a method of performance in a certain role.

In the theoretical section you shall find the explanations of basic terms and the principals of drama education, its targets, methods and techniques for preschool education. It is focused on a research of drama education as a possible fear prevention method.

The practical part of my dissertation work is a topic section "Who would fear?" where using drama methods and techniques as main tools we work on an improvement of child relationships with other specified animal species.

The aim of my dissertation work is to discover whether drama education can influence preschool child fears and anxieties of animals.
