

Domestic violence in the Czech Republic recently often discussed term . In the media we read articles with information for victims of domestic violence , as well as references to cases of domestic violence , Czech political representation involved the search for solutions to this phenomenon. Domestic violence has been recognized as a serious social problem. Yet still many areas that are not yet resolved to the extent needed .

Domestic violence is generally referred to abuse and violent behavior , taking place between related persons living together in a shared apartment or house where one violent person obtains and maintains power over the other and kontrolu1 .

This is the physical and verbal abuse , physical abuse , restriction of personal freedom, extortion , sexual abuse , threats , etc.

One of the forms of domestic violence , domestic violence involving children (official term adopted in 1998) 7

Which occurs in three forms : first, defined as such behavior parent -child relationship , which is filled definition syndrome of abused and neglected child , or a situation where the child committing violence on their parents , or to a situation where the child watches violence between their parents , ie . that stands in as a witness DN .

The issue of children - DN witnesses can be regarded as the most serious , and it several reasons. As is clear from the statistics , it is a very common phenomenon - Eg statistics center ROSA show that violence between parents children are present in more than 80 % případů5

. The presence of violence but has a devastating impact on children : number of children consequently suffer from the same problems as children who were themselves abused . It is therefore wonder that the World Health Organization considers the mere presence of children in the domestic violence emotional abuse . The issue of child - DN witness in the Czech Republic is comprehensively solved only relatively short time. A prerequisite for effective aid these children is a clear legislative basis for the role of individual operators the protection of vulnerable children. Detection , intervention and prevention of child abuse in the form of presence DN must necessarily be assured interdisciplinarily because uncoordinated and isolated interventions can be effective in these cases .
