

Abstract

The subject matter of the submitted thesis “Transport Policy of the City of Prague” is an analysis of the current condition of transport in the territory of the City of Prague and a proposal of an integrated transport strategy. The first chapter focuses on the definition of the term ‘transport policy’. The next chapter focuses on the strategic documents regulating the conditions of Prague transport system. In the chapter “Analysis of the Present Transport Situation in Prague” I focus on the present situation, problematic areas and the consequences for the city life. The next chapter covers the financing of transport and transport-related structures in Prague. The last chapter proposes an integrated transport strategy with consideration to the historical milieu, financial capacities and sustainable development.
