

Abstract

Title: Analysis of dog interventions at the Association of Rescue Brigades of Cynologists of the Czech Republic

Objectives: The main aim of the diploma thesis is the analysis of dog interventions at the Association of Rescue Brigades of Cynologists of the Czech Republic and analysis of tests of the Association of Rescue Brigades of Cynologists organized according to the National Examination Regulations of the Association of Rescue Brigades of Cynologists from 1 May 2016 to 31 December 2020. Another aim of the thesis is to summarize the history, current activities and involvement of the Union of Rescue Brigades of Cynologists of the Czech Republic within the IRS.

Methods: Theoretical background was developed on the basis of search of books and legislation. Using the method of content analysis key terms are defined, which includes IRS, IRS components, SZBK CR. The practical part of this diploma thesis was prepared based on descriptive statistics method.

Results: The main result of this diploma thesis is description and evaluation of numerical data of all interventions of the Union of Rescue Brigades of Cynologists of the Czech Republic from 1 May 2016 to 31 December 2020 and all exams of the Union of Rescue Brigades of Cynologists of the Czech Republic organized according to the National Examination Regulations of the Union of Rescue Brigades of Cynologists from 1 May 2016 to 31 December 2020. Summary description of the Union of Rescue Brigades of Cynologists of the Czech Republic, including its operation within the integrated rescue system and legislative powers, is another result of this thesis.

Keywords: Analysis, intervention, rescue, dogs, training