

In the present work we study methods used for content based image retrieval. We analyse features based on color, shape, texture and spatial relations. We review methods for construction signatures based on this features and their comparison. We touch the segmentation techniques and methods for obtaining hidden semantics in image content. At last but not least we study some of evaluation metrics for content based image retrieval systems.