

In its theoretical part the Bachelor Thesis „Services for children and youth in the area of Prague 13“ speaks about social services, their accreditation and standards of quality in social services. Short chapter is dedicated to community planning which has become the most widely spread form of both social services and of services in general.

Further on in the thesis types of services for children and youth are mentioned according to how they are defined by law and specialised literature. This part concerns the services that can be used by children and youth mostly during their leisure time.

Practical part is centered on the area of Prague 13 which is fastly growing area that where the new inhabitants are accepted. Later in the work is a remark about the sociodemographic structure about this district of Prague. There are discussed separate areas of the life in Prague 13 and the coverage of this area by the services for children and youth and about how they are perceived by average user. According to the law n.108/2007 of the code about the social services, services are communally planned there too. There was also made a research about the needs of the users of social services.

In expert research which covers 12 respondents belonging to the providers of the services there are covered their views of the coverage and offerings of social services. At the end there is the conclusion about the expert research together with the selection of the several points that should be covered in the community planning.
