

The attention deficit hyperactivity disorder is not unique phenomenon at children at the present time. Inattentiveness, hyperactivity, impetousity are main symptoms of this disorder, which affect life of child significantly and its integration in the society. Families of these children are in difficulties, which makes a series of problems, such as difficulties with learning, social contact and sleeping. Parents of hyperactive children have to face up to these things and also find their effective solution, that brings higher claim to whole family. Aim of my work is describe broad issue of families with hyperactive children, so explain their difficult situation, emotions and needs, which arise from care of child with this disorder. In practical part I interested in position of hyperactive children and their families in the fields of diagnostics, education, foreknowledge, programmes and services, which are offered for these families.
