

Goal of the thesis is to implement a catalogue tool for collection (with special focus on coin collections) maintenance. The program allows to compare user's collections with model collections stored in the database and export lists of missing items. In addition to that it also contains functions designed to print and export various reports summarizing stored collections and items. The program communicates with remote database which contains data of registered users accessing it through unique login name.