

This master's thesis intends to think over the concept of finality and origin as approached by Martin Heidegger and Hannah Arendt in order to finally describe as both thinkers consider them as the key principles for constituting the existence. It is based on analysing Heidegger's works "Sein und Zeit", "Vom Wesen des Grundes" and "Was ist Metaphysik" (a lecture), and Arendt's works the Vita Activa, "Between Past and Future" and "Thinking and Moral Considerations" (a lecture).
