

This work is focused on the typology of financial sources of NGO's as well as on understanding of the importance of ability to cover the costs of those organizations by their own sources in order to be independent of others. The emphasis is put to Public benefit corporations as the representative of the Czech non-for-profit sector. The work should also prove the importance of Public benefit corporations and their close connection to social economy at all. Public benefit corporations are seen as organizations responsible for providing the public good services as well as organizations allowed to benefit from their own business activities which altogether goes along with the basic principles of social economy. The main goals of this work are to create a brief profile of Public benefit corporations in Ústí nad Labem and document or find out how important role the selffinancing plays, with a focus on the point of view of organizations themselves.
