

This dissertation handles about an appearance of diagrams in high school mathematics and their use for solving of different problems. It features several kinds of diagrams, their dissimilarities and their ways of use. It also shows how together cohere logic and set theory. The work can help like a basis for mathematics teachers in high schools, in mathematics seminars or in hobby groups for mathematics. Enclosed is also a CD which includes an electronic form of this work.