

Emotional intelligence is the ability to face up with changes in life, describes a concept that involves the ability of empathy, harking, perception, understanding of feelings, the ability of identifying, assessing and managing the emotions of oneself and the others.

In the theoretical part I will analyze positive and negative factors effecting on children's emotional evolution from surroundings, especially social factors. I will present recommended techniques for working with emotional intelligence.

Practical part will show how it is possible to modify methods into classwork activities.

Methodical-systematical teacher's work can certainly develop emotional intelligence of children.