Web crawler generates web structure including the notes (anchor texts) which belong to individual links.Thesis target is to analyze and implement method for visualisation of this oriented graph structure. Implementation language platform is Java. Implementation must be able to denamically change the view according to defined criteria – showing only certain links or web pages. Grouping of links or web pages must be also available.