

The relation between spiritual life of the man and his attitude towards the questions relating to the end of life, especially dying, death and euthanasia is the body issue of this thesis. In the first place there are two topics separately described: the theme of dying and death and the theme of spirituality of the man. The main part of this thesis is a chapter dealing with the correlation of both these issues, namely with the particular view to Christianity. At the end there are described the matters of euthanasia and the palliative care.
