

The aim of this master's thesis was to create educational material for teachers and students for the subject Citizenship education for 6th and 7th grades in primary schools based on didactic analysis and analysis of the target educational domain „Person in Society“.

The choice of the topic was influenced by the urgent need to create educational material which would correspond to the current principles in upbringing and education as they are given by the Framework Educational Program for primary education in terms of the curricular reform of the current Czech education, and in this way to help teachers with their pedagogic experience.

Two thematic pieces were chosen to create the educational material – Our School, Relations between People. The educational material was fashioned into the form of a methodical guidebook and workbooks which were tested at chosen primary schools.⁶⁴ The testing of the educational material allowed for flexible response to the student's and teacher's suggestions and meaningful revision of incurred issues based on theoretical resources and didactic analysis of the real school experience.

The most important principals which formed the character of this work and fundamentally influenced the manner of creation and meaning are above all the concept of preparation of the thematic piece according to M. Pasche and the concept of the structure of terms according to J. S. Bruner utilized with the mental mapping of the term and relation analysis of teaching material. Active and individual thinking and students' approach to study material together with the use of activating methods of teaching were also emphasized.
